John, Ray et. al.: There is a letter coming to the Division, with copies to me and LTC Curtis from C. Loring Brace, University of Michigan. For you non-anthro types, Brace is a GIANT in the physical anthropology world. He literally writes the books on the subject.

While the letter misses the mark on a number of legal points, he makes some scientific observations that could be tremendously important. For example, he says that the "overwhelming preponderance of evidence points to an Asian origin for Native Americans. . . ." "Entry into the Western Hemisphere was by the northwestern edge. . . via what is now the State of Washington. . ." "From the one visual image available (NY Times). . . it obviously shares features with the few other well-preserved specimens available of similar antiquity. These features differ from those visible in many but by no means all of the living descendants of the First
